

Hande ŞAR SANCAKLI

DDS, PhD, Associate Professor
Department of Restorative Dentistry
Faculty of Dentistry
Istanbul University
Istanbul, Turkey

Dr. Hande Şar Sancaklı is an educationist, researcher and specialist in Restorative Dentistry. She received her DDS at the Faculty of Dentistry, Istanbul University, Turkey in 2000, and was awarded her PhD at same university in 2007 with the doctoral thesis entitled “Comparison of antibacterial effects of dentin bonding agents in vitro”. She pursued her academic career in the same university which gained her an Associate Professorship degree in 2012. With the academic co-operation of Prof. Dr. David Bartlett, she worked as a Visiting Lecturer at King’s College Dental Institute, Guy’s Hospital, London, UK. Besides having more than 100 scientific publications in internationally/nationally indexed journals, citations in indexed journals (H-index>6), book chapters in internationally distinguished publishing houses, she delivered more than 50 lectures in various international conferences, seminars and performed hands-on courses in restorative dentistry about adhesive dentistry, minimal invasive dentistry and restorative materials, and she had also received awards regarding her lectures.

She has been involved in the organization of many international congresses based on her scientific and organizational background. She is a member of various international scientific associations; member of the Board of the Istanbul University, member of Turkish Dental Association International Affairs Committee, chairperson of ERO/FDI Working Group Continuing Medical Education. She is currently the FDI Regional Continuing Education Director of Europe.

Research interests: (1) restorative dentistry, (2) adhesive dentistry, (3) minimal invasive dentistry, (4) restorative materials.