

Martina SCHMID-SCHWAP
DDS, PhD, Professor, Head
Special Clinic for
Temporomandibular Disorders
University Clinic of Dentistry
Medical University of Vienna
Vienna, Austria

Professor Schwab specializes in temporomandibular disorders. She is involved in undergraduate and postgraduate education, university management and research projects. She received her medical degree from the University of Vienna and the dental medical degree from the Medical University of Vienna. She worked as a scientific researcher and then as a resident doctor at the department of Prosthodontics of the University clinic of Dentistry in Vienna. She became Head of the Special Clinic for Temporomandibular Disorders in 2000, Curriculum coordinator in 2007, Associate Professor at the Department of Prosthodontics 2013 and Deputy Director of the curriculum for dental studies in 2016.

She received the Rudolf-Slavicek-Award of the Austrian Society of Dentistry 2008, 2010 and 2015 and the Austrian Dental Award 2012 and 2013. She is a member of several dental and medical associations, editorial boards, reviewer of various dental journals and she published several publications and abstracts and held many lectures at national and international conferences.

Research interests: temporomandibular disorders, clinical functional analysis, instrumental functional analysis, snoring therapy, orofacial pain.