

Gaetano ISOLA
DDS, PhD, Pg. Oral Surg
Associate Professor
Department of Periodontology
School of Dentistry
University of Catania
Catania CT, Italy

Dr. Gaetano Isola qualified in Dentistry at the University of Messina, Italy, got his PhD at the University of Turin, Italy. He was a visiting Research fellow at the “Laboratory of Study of Calcified Tissues and Biomaterials”, Department of Periodontology, Université de Montréal, Canada. He attended an advanced course in Periodontology at the University of Ferrara. He holds a three-year certificate in Oral Surgery at the University of Naples “Federico II”. HE was a visiting Professor at the Department of Periodontology, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, USA and the Department of Oral Surgery, University of Granada, Spain, a visiting Researcher at the Department of Implantology and Oral Surgery, University of Bern, Switzerland and the Department of Periodontology of the “Eastman Dental Institute”, London.

He is an active member of the Italian Society of Oral Surgery (SIdCO) and of the International Piezoelectric Surgery Academy (IPA), member of the board of the International Association of Dental Research (IADR) and member of the Italian Society of Periodontology (SIdP), an active member of the “International IADR Constitution Committee” of the International Association of Dental Research (IADR) (2016-2019), and 2019-2022.

He acted as advisor of several research projects and speaker at national and international conferences of Periodontology and Oral Surgery. He authored over 220 articles published in national and international peer-reviewed publications. His main research interests focus on the clinical, biological and pharmacological aspects of periodontitis, and the relationship between oral health and systemic health.